BRIEF TALK BY FORAKER

OHIO SENATOR SPEAKS FROM DENI-

terview with Him-Thomas B. Reed's Voice Gives Out.

Senator Foraker, of Ohio, arrived in the city at 6:30 last night on a special train from Frankfort, where he held a big meeting during the afternoon. There were many citizens at the Union Station to greet him as he left the train. The Marion Club was there with the When band to escort the Senator to the Denison House. The club made a fine showing in white duck trousers and dark coats, and was greeted with cheers on the way to the station. Senator Coraker and the committee which went to rankfort to escort him to this city entered a carriage and headed the procession to the Denison, where a crowd of considerable proportion had assembled to greet the distinguished Ohioan. He was not allowed time to rest or get a bite to eat, for the people assembled were clamoring for a word from him. Senator Foraker responded promptly by going to the balcony of the hotel and facing the crowd, which had filled the street to such an extent that the street cars were compelled to stop for a while. His appearance on the balcony was the occasion for hearty applause. Gen. John Coburn then stepped forward and in a few words introduced the speaker, who said at the outset that he was compelled to take warning in time and refrain from doing much talking in the open air after night or he might soon be unable to do any work at all for his party. For that reason his remarks were short. He said:

"My Fellow-citizens-I have not come out here for the purpose of making to you any remarks that would be proper to characterize as a speech. I have simply come to thank you for your kindly greeting; and I would thank especially the Marion Club for coming down to act as a special escort. The courtesy was unexpected, but, never-thless, appreciated in the very highest de-

"I congratulate you that we are nearing teh close of what is not only an important, but in every essential sense of the word, a most successful political contest. (Applause.) On the 3d day of November, if I cad the signs aright, the American people vill speak in no uncertain terms for Mc-Kinley, protection and sound money. (Applause.) I congratulate you that the eviences are so conclusive as you make them. that in this march to victory Indiana pro-poses to keep abreast with the other great and progressive States of this Union.

"I would be glad to talk to you, my fellow-citizens, about these political ques-tions if we were so situated as to permit of my doing so with any comfort either to myself or to you. But you can readily see that that is not at all possible, situated as we are; and, therefore, I propose to ask you to excuse me, simply again thanking you for the compliment of this call, and expressing the hope that at this election you will not only roll up a great majority or McKinley, but also for your Governor (Appleuse and cries of 'We will!'); and especially that you will see to it that we have in Indiana a Republican Legislature that will choose a Republican United States to Congress a Republican to represent you in this capital district of the State of Indiana. (Applause and cries of 'We will do

Governor McKinley cannot do much in the White House to satisfy the expectations of the people of this country, unless he is supported by a Republican Congress. We propose to do our duty by him in that regard in Ohio know you will do your duty by him here in Indiana. (Applause.)
"It may be not without interest to you for me to say that I am just returning home after a somewhat protracted cam-paign in the Western States. I have been to Iowa; I have been to Nebraska; I have been to Kansas, and elsewhere; and wherever I have gone I have found the American people determined that this year they will so vote as to return this country to where it was in 1892 (applause); that they will so vote as not only to secure prosperity for the American people, but to preserve untarnished the name and honor of the American Republic. I thank you."

The crowd present expected to hear a few words from Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, but in this they were disappointed, for tele-grams from Fort Wayne earlier in the day stated that Mr. Reed was confined to his hotel and had been compelled to cancel his engagements for Cambridge City yesterday and for Peru to-day. His voice had given out entirely and yesterday morning he was unable to speak above a whisper. He went to Chicago in the afternoon, where he will rest and endeavor to get his throat in

FORAKER AT FRANKFORT.

Great Parade and a Great Speech to a Crowd of 20,000 People.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FRANKFORT, Ind., Oct. 16 .- The greatest political demonstration ever seen in ple were present, nearly all from this county. There were 2,870 people in line of march by actual count, all voters save 150. Senator Foraker made a masterly discussion of the issues on the public square, but only a small portion of the vast throng could get within hearing distance. He handled the financial and tariff questions in such a manner as to convince both Democrats and Republicans who had hesitated ard doubted. He appealed to the patriotism of citizens as only Foraker can do. The the Clinton Bicycle Club, followed by the old soldiers' club, large enough to give the lie to the claim of J. B. Cheadle that the old soldiers of Clinton county are for him.
The Clover Leaf McKinley Club had a delegation of railroad and shop men large enough to send terror to the hearts of local In their ranks were many former Democrats. Senator Foraker paid a glowing tribute to Hon. Charles B. Landis, whose election to Congress over the Populistic combine is now assured. The Republicans of Clinton county are thoroughly organized, of Clinton county are thoroughly organized, and this demonstration shows their determination to carry this county by an increased majority in spite of the boast of the free-silverites. The Republican organization here is perfect and entirely harmonious. The entire campaign here has been a square fight on the financial issue and has been a winner from the start been a square light on the mancial issue and has been a winner from the start. Hon. James T. Johnston spoke after Sena-tor Foraker, and the Old Shady quartet as-sisted in furnishing the music. The Re-publicans here congratulate themselves on the magnificent success of the rally.

of his address was devoted to praise of President Cleveland. Mr. Julian has for some years lived in retirement at Irvington. He is one of the very few leaders of the abolition movement still living. He was the candidate of the Free Soilers for Vice President in 1852 and helped to organize the Republican party, acting as vice president and chairman of the Pitts. the organization committee at the Pitts-burg convention in 1856. In 1860 he was elected to Congress and was kept there until 1872, when he joined the Liberal Re-publicans. Since then he has been a Demo-

The tendency of the iree-silver forces ignore the name as well as principles of the old Democratic party seems irresistible. Comment has frequently been made upon the fact that in the Ninth and Sixth districts the word "Democratic" has been left off the bills altogether. The practice has also crept in in this city, and the bills printed by Chair-man Rochford this week have been announcements of "silver meetings." example of this is the bill for a ward rally last night. JOHN P. IRISH'S SPEECH

THE CALIFORNIAN ADDRESSES A Wasson's Saturday Sale

Controlled by Populism-Words as to Regularity.

The crowd that greeted John P. Irish at Tomlinson Hall last night was composed mostly of men. At 8 o'clock three-fourths of the chairs in the auditorium were occupied, the galleries were comfortably filled and the stage was crowded. By 8:30 o'clock almost all the empty chairs remaining were taken and kept until the speaker had concluded, over two hours later. Pictures of Paimer and Buckner adorned the front of the stage and sides of the gallery and sound-money badges were conspicuous throughout the audience, for a campaignbadge vender with an eye to business had loaded up with sound-money emblems and stationed himself in the entrance. The audience was very attentive, and there was an absence of the constant humming of voices so common to political gatherings. During the speech the audience frequently burst into applause, which was for the moment deafening, but died away as suddenly as it came, showing that the audience was intensely interested in the words of the speaker, and while enthusiastic, did not want to miss a single sentence. A sympathetic feeling seemed to exist between the speaker and the audience, and instead of the distance which sometimes characterizes public addresses, Mr. Irish seemed to be talking to a congregation of acquaintances. Towards the close of his speech he stopped and looked at his watch. "Keep on!" "Talk all night!" were the various shouts that came from all over the room. "I would like to talk all night to you, my friends," said he, "but there is a limit to physical endurance, and as I have been talking every day, I will have to forbear that pleasure with you."

Colonel Irish's Speech. John R. Wilson, in a brief speech, introduced Colonel Irish, who spoke, in part, as

"Mr. Chairman and Fellow-citizens of Indiana-There is compressed in the history of every nation that which makes it unnecessary that those who come from the border to the center to fight for honor, or those who come from the center to the border to fight for honor, should make any pology for their efforts in such a battle have come from Caiffornia to do what I may to maintain in their strength and their integrity the ancient and honorable principles of my party, and at the same time to do what I may to save from stain and dishonor the integrity of my country. (Ap-Twenty years ago I took part in a na tional campaign in your Commonwealth

sixteen years ago upon your soil I defended the cause of the gallant Hanceck; eight years ago, in the State of Indiana, I followed the standard of that leader who, resurrecting this ancient party, commanded it to victory in the ballot box in three cam-paigns. (Applause.) I am here to-night in listed my labors twenty years ago, and stx-teen years ago, and eight years ago. And if age shall spare my strength and time leave my faculties unstricken, you again find me either upon the soil of Indiana or somewhere else in the Republic standing out with my voice and strength in behalf of those same principles which cannot perish without insuring the passing of liberty from the Republic. (Applause.)
"I am aware that men say the Chicago convention was regular; being the regular action of the party, how can I separate myself from the party and oppose their action? Suppose that there were met in the State of Indiana under the regular forms an annual conference of the Methodist Church, the presiding bishop sitting over the deliberations of that body, and, instead of standing by John Wesley and free grace and the other saying doctrines of that very old and excellent denomination, they should go back to the mother church, avow their fealty to the seven sacraments and against all the ordinances of that ancient, to the Methodists of Indiana, "This was all done regularly and you must submit to it. Is there a Methodist in the State of Indiana who would leave his doctrine and come out of his amen corner and follow that conference under the plea of regularity? No. In other words, in politics and in religious bodies with authority we canno ferget the obligations of conscience and of honor; and their principles shall be in line with the history of tradition and the principles of the party whose name they bear. Any other declaration at right angles to such principles and history, instead of being in line with it, absolves every man devoted to those principles that have been violated and prevents them from supporting the declaration of such a body. POPOCRATS CONTROL IT. "Why talk about regularity? Regularity has been the cry in the State of Indiana to whip Democrats into line whose consciences are in daily and nightly revolt against the Populistic declaration of Chicago. And to what feast of regularity are you who have stood in line invited now? nothing but organize and conduct a campaign. Your Bryan-Populistic State committee in the State of Indiana is authorized to do nothing about the ticket nominated by the convention of the party except to fill vacancies that might occur by death or resignation in that ticket; and then to ill those vacancies with Democrats, and not the members of any other party. That committee, at the dictation of this Populist so-called Democratic national committee, at the dictation of the Populist party per se of the State of Indiana, has left out fiv men who were Democrats on your electoral ticket and has put in their places five men who belonged to that class of men once members of one or the other of the old parties who let their hair grow long (applause) and went into the heresies of Pop-And now all your so-called Democratic State committee are invited to place them on your ticket, and for them you have to vote. Talk of regularity! That State committee might just as well have effected it by force and violence—and I am told that violence had almost to be used on my old friend Jason Brown (laughter and applause)—and I am told that the road between Indianapolis and Jason's home looks at this moment like a cyclone had passed over it (laughter), so thoroughly had Ja-son's temper, not to say his blasphemous comments on the proceeding, blasted every green thing that lay in his track. (Laugh ter and applause.) By force almost these men have been removed and five Populists put in their places. It simply illustrates, my fellow-Democrats, the danger of setting your feet by one hair's breadth outside the safe, well-worn and beaten path of Democratic principle (applause), when once you go back on the work of the fathers, when once you surrender the principles in which you were taught, which you have loved and which you have followed cheerfully either to victory or de-

BOASTS OF POPULISTS. "To-day Populism demirates the Democratic party of Indiana; and the secretary of the Populist national committee boasts that he has forced the Democratic party in three-fourths of the States of this Union J. P. Eirick, of Chicago, will speak in German at Raab's blacksmith shop, in Warren township, Monday night, and at Cum- consummated in the State of Indiana. But he has forced this Populist Democracy of Chicago to go further than that. In the State of Washington he has forced them to surrender the Democrate name, and the organization in Washington is known as the State of Oregon to surrender the Democratic name and appear as Populists purely. He has forced them in the State of Michigan to dilute by elongation the name of the Democratic party, calling it the "Democratic People's Free-silver Party." (Laughter and applause.)
"I stand here, then, in behalf of the old party; in behalf of its history, its principles, its leaders; I stand here in behalf of that new birth of that old party that we witnessed under such inspiring circumwe witnessed under such inspiring circumstances in this hall but little more than six weeks ago. I stand for the Indianapolis organization and platform of the National Democratic party. And, standing for that. I stand, my countrymen, for the Democracy of the future (applause); because after the present witch dance is over (applause)—after the kettle is done boiling and bubbling, this kettle of the Chicago platform-this mess of anarchist which broth (laughter and applause), made up of broth (laughter and applause), made up of eye of mouse, tongue of frog, ear of cat, and tail of dog (laughter and applause)—when the bubbling is over and the dance is done, then the people of this country, protesting patriotism, making other appeals to their countrymen than to prejudice, greed, avance and passion, looking around, will see the Indianapolis platform, the lead;

NOT MONEY PLANK ALONE. "Now, my objections to that Chicago platform are not to the money plank alone, My objection to the Chicago platform, the objection of every Democrat to that platform, is that it is undemocratic from preamble to finish. It makes only two allusions to anything that has been heretofore held by the Democratic party, and those allusions are either evasive or cowardly. "It is true it refers to the Monroe doctrine, a doctrine declared in 1824 by the administration of Mr. Monroe, but left unconstrued. An attempt was made during the lifetime of Monroe, through the administration of John Quincy Adams, his successor, who had been his Secretary of State, to construe the Monroe doctrine in Congress to the United States delegates to what was called the Panama Congress, to be held in the city of Panama, composed of delegations from the American nations to them-a Congress which, by the way, never met. And John Randolph fought a duel about it and that was the only pow der ever burned on the Monroe doctrine until under the weight of that, Maxmillian went down and the toy empire he had sought to found in Mexico fell with him. That doctrine remained unconstrued until the captain and commander of this Democthe man who led up to success at the ballot box and to a triumphant victory by a large majority of the Electoral Col ege in two campaigns-the Monroe doc trine remained unconstrued until that captain and commander gave it expressi which goes into history; and the Monroe doctrine with the Cleveland construction is the doctrine. (Applause.) The party that met at Chicago, referring to the Monroe doctrine, had not the manhood and the courage and the American sense of fair play to give to this captain due credit for having given vital force and interpre-tation to that doctrine.

THE FEDERAL POWER. "The convention at Chicago, amongst its other planks, adopted one denying to the federal law by federal power without the assent of the State within whose borders that law might be violated. How does this affect you and me? This is a campaign in which we'discuss fundamental propositions of that platform affect our government if they be crystallized into law and, affecting our government, how do they affect us? That platform denies to the federal government the right to enforce federal laws within the borders of a State when the same is violated without the consent of that State. That is a renewal of the doctrine of nullification that curred in South Carolina in 1832 under the administration of Jackson. "The candidate of the Populistic convention at Chicago in nearly every speech he makes attempts to identify the great name and memory of Jefferson with the heresies of that platform. Why, in 1832 the nulli-fiers of South Carolina sought to identify Jefferson with that constitutional heresy. While holding a banquet in Washington city, on Jefferson's birthday, Cathoun sat at one end of the table, Jackson, the Pres ident of the Republic, at the other; Cal-houn proposed a toast to the memory of Jefferson, identifying Jefferson with South Carolina and her effort at nullification. Andrew Jackson rose at the end of the table, holding his glass of bright wine uttered this sentiment which from then until now has been one of patriotism and manhood in every nation on earth where 'By the eternal, the federal government shall be preserved.' (Long applause.) That was the answer of the Democratic party through the mouth of its captain to nulli fication in 1832; that has been the position of the Democratic party on nullification from then until now, elaborated as that sentiment was in Jackson's message to Congress in answer to the challenge of the nullification committee of South Carolina. And this so-called Democratic convention Chicago renews that nullification Mr. Irish then illustrated with a Japanes ren, a Mexican dollar and a gold piece, the fact that the value of money was based on its commercial worth and that this in turn was regulated by its builion value, saying:

"A gold coin is worth the amount stamped on its face by the government, because the government stamp is a certificate that the gold is so many grains and of such a fineness; and that banks receiving gold count it not by the name it bears, but by the weight of it, thus keeping it always at its natural or bullion value, while silver is received at the rate stamped on its face. In fact, a silver dollar may have the cheek of the Goddess of Liberty worn down so far as to make it impossible for her to blush, and yet it is a dollar—because it has the stamp of a dollar and because there is a gold dollar pledge back of it."

JOHN P. FRENZEL'S ESTIMATE.

Electoral Votes. Richard Lieber, city editor of the Indiana Tribune, has just returned from Chicago, where he went to take a look at the headquarters of the different political parthe Populist party. He has forced them in the State of Oregon to surrender the Demtration. Last Tuesday was the first day of registration, and the same day of next week is the last day. On the basis of the result of the first day's registration-293,048 voters-the entire number of Chicago's voters is estimated at 418,000, a higher number than that of any other city of the United States. Last year New York registered 281,-008 voters, or about 11,000 less than Chicago, in one day. A comparison shows that the entire vote of New York in 1892 was 284,824, or about 8,000 votes less than Chicago's registration thus far.

"These comparisons give the Chicagoans the utmost pleasure and pride," said Mr. Lieber, "and you can hardly start any sort of a talk without having your attention called to the fact that 'We are going to beat New York all to pieces, an expression which is modulated in all kinds of variations, according to the speaker's education. A visit to the different headquarters is of great interest. Ahead of all concerning brilliant organization is the Republican central committee. It works like a charm, for, it is a great big mechanism that is run without any evident labor. Concerning the registration thus far.

Popocratic headquarters just the reverse might be said. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, the chairman, is the target of all kinds of jokes on the part of the Chicago press. His organization is evidently suffering from general debility. Absence of good judgment nd knowledge characterizes the Popocratic headquarters. The Palmer House contains the workshop of the gold Democrats, and it is not too much to say their unselfish, steadfast work for principles and a patriotic cause entitles them to the name of National John P. Frenzel, the secretary and treasurer of the national committee, gives the following forecast: following forecast:

"For Bryan-Virginia, 12 electoral votes;
South Carolina, 9; Georgia, 13; Florida, 4;
Tennesse, 12; Arkansas, 8; Colorado, 4;
South Dakota, 4; North Dakota, 3; Washington, 4; Utah, 2; Montana, 3.

"Doubtful-Alabama, 11; Texas, 15; Louisiana, 8; Nebraska, 8; Kansas, 10, or 130 electoral votes in all if he should win all doubtful States with those corrected to doubtful States with those conceded to

Her selections were varied, and in them she showed her versatility. Miss Mabel Brown, a violinist of talent, added to the pleasure programme with her selections, which were neartily received, and Miss Florence G. Atkins, planist, who is always a favorite, played with her accustomed brilliancy, and Mrs. Gertrude Hasler Fugate sang exceedingly well. A social hour was spent, and the young people were presented to Miss Breneman. TUTTLE-HITE.
